

January 17, 2011

For The Glory – A Virginia Film by a Virginia Film Company

For immediate release

CDR Communications, Inc. & 1Voice Films

Contact: Cortney Matz

703-569-3400

cortney@cdrcommunications.com

In 1984, Chris Rogers founded CDR Communications, Inc., a full-service television and radio production company in Burke, Virginia. At that time he made a list of 9 projects he wanted to do. In the ensuing 25 years, he and his growing team gradually checked all those projects off the list.

All but one, that is.

The one unfulfilled dream was that of a feature film. Not just any feature, but a film that would be evangelistic in nature, to exalt the name of Christ and draw audiences to him.

Meanwhile, Donald Leow had been producing and directing evangelistic productions in Singapore for 24 years. In 2007, the office he had been working with was closed, and he was able to come work with CDR in the United States.

When Donald and his family moved to Virginia, the Leows lived with the Rogers family for a few months until they could find a place of their own. Once they began house hunting, who should be their realtor but Kurt Kuykendall!

As Donald and his wife Sandra got to know Kurt, the conversation naturally turned to soccer. Since Donald is a die-hard 'football' fan, it didn't take much to get him and Kurt talking sport. Come to find that Kurt played soccer for American University his last three years at school. He played professionally for three years, going on to represent the US in the 1976 Olympic soccer trials!

Kurt invited the Leow family to his church, The King's Chapel, and as they settled into their new church home, Donald met Katherine and Chris Craddock. Guess what – the Craddocks had written a script about Kurt's life! Would Donald look at it?

The rest is history. FOR THE GLORY pre-production began in September, 2009 and completed production in June, 2010. Post-production is going on now; we plan to release the film in 2011!

Photos and videos available at: <http://tinyurl.com/forthegloryFacebook>

fortheglorythemovie.com

cdrcommunications.com

1voicefilms.com